Representative Matters

- Represented family members in recovering ownership of multi-million dollar family farm that had been transferred out of an irrevocable trust using decanting statute.
- Successfully defended trustee and sole beneficiary against trust contest by disinherited heir. Then, when trial judge erroneously entered judgment that could have exposed the trustee to subsequent litigation, prevailed on appeal to modify judgment to insulate trustee from any possible further litigation.
- Represented trustee, both in trial court and on appeal, in enforcing terms of previous settlement agreement, resulting from his co-trustee's a breach of fiduciary duties, after the offending co-trustee erroneously claimed he had satisfied his obligations under the agreement.
- Represented surviving spouse in defending her status as beneficiary of her deceased husband's retirement benefits against contest by decedent's former wife and children, who had claimed lack of capacity and undue influence.
- Represented trustee of irrevocable trust in published appellate decision confirming that the trust could have been properly funded with life insurance policy proceeds even though all formalities typically required by the terms of the life insurance policy had not been satisfied.
- Represented former spouse in collecting unpaid child support through creditor's claim procedure after her ex-husband relocated to a different state and then passed away before discharging child support obligations.
- Represented decedent's children in a contested probate accounting over various expenses the administrator attempted to charge against the estate, and then further successfully obtained an order from the court shifting a portion of the client's fees and cost to several unrepresented heirs through a "common fund" theory of fee recovery.
